Board oks SIP plans

5 Albany schools seek state funding

By CHARLES PELTON

ABANY - The Albany School Board took three- and-a-half late night hours of discussion to approve the school improvement programs (S.I.P.) for all five of the district's schools.

All five plans represent the end of year-long efforts by the district's autonomous site councils — groups of parents, faculty, staff and, in some cases, students — devoted to the improvement of their school's program. With the board's approval the plans now move to Sacramento where requests for school improvement funds are considered.

"The notion (of school improvement programs)," assistant superintendent Richard Rosenquist explained, "was that within school districts there are schools who have the initiative to plan to improve their own school programs. They could get extra money from the state."

The extra money, which Rosenquist described as private sector style "incentive money," is awarded on a competitive basis. He estimates that over the five or six years since the legislature first set up the S.I.P. program, Albany schools have received in excess of $1 million.

"I know of no other district where a S.I.P. exists in all the district's schools," Rosenquist said.

Typical of the district's S.I.P. proposals was that offered by Marin School. According to principal Jon Frank and site council chair Ruth Rutte, S.I.P funds so far received have given Marin students a pet library, a science room, an inflatable planetarium from the Lawrence Hall of Science, a reduction in energy costs at the school and a before- and after-school computer literacy program for 50 to 60 students.

Next year Marin hopes that S.I.P. funds will allow for more fine arts

It's midsummer eve

So, get ready to gather your fernseed

By MOIRA ANDERSON

It's almost Midsummer once again, and time to start planning for those bonfires to ensure the fertility of your lawns and gardens. It's also time to think about collecting your Midsummer fernseed...

That's right. If you have any plans to become invisible this year, or discover buried treasure, fernseed is indispensable — and Midsummer's Eve is the only time you can get it.

But you've never seen fernseed, you say? That's not surprising, since ferns reproduce with spores. Still, according to Czechoslovkian folklore, on St. John's Day (Midsummer), the fern "glows with golden blossoms that gleam like fire." The idea is that if you climb a mountain while holding fernseed, you will discover a vein of gold, or "see the treasures of the earth shining with a bluish flame."

In Russia it's even simpler. All you need to do is cast the seed into the air and it will fall "like a star" to the spot where treasure is buried. In Brittany the fernseed gathered at Midsummer should be saved until the Palm Sunday of the following year, and then spread by hopeful treasure seekers on the ground where they think treasure lies. The power of the seed will cause the gold to rise to the surface. This has the added advantage that failure is the fault of the seeker and not the seed.

Other regions require even less work. Bohemian maidens had only to spread a cloth beneath the blossoming ferns, and red gold would drop upon it. Fernseed could also be used to force the devil to bring you a sack of gold. Placed with your money, it will ensure that it will never decrease.

But fernseed confers other benefits besides riches. Shakespeare cites its power in Henry IV: "We have the receipt of fern-seed. We walk invisible." If you are successful in gathering the seed — which is itself invisible — and carry it or put it in your shoes, you may also walk invisible and hear what your friends and family are saying about you. But the process has its drawbacks: besides hearing things you may not wish to hear, you may also arouse the jealousy of the fairies, who consider the seed their personal property. On the brighter side, however, you will be protected from witches and other evils.

The real problem of fernseed, however, is not what to do with it once you have it, but how to get it. The commonest method is to spread a white cloth beneath the ferns, which only blossom between dusk and midnight. Since the seed is invisible, it isn't easy to be sure you have it. If you

County's jobless call for help

By SCOTT WILSON

A hotline for unemployed people has attracted a surprisingly high response during its first month of operation, according to the program's director.

"It's a larger showing than what we expected," said Violet Smith, executive director of the Contra Costa Crisis and Suicide Intervention Service.

The hotline, officially called the "Support Line for Unemployed Workers," began operation April 18. During its first 25 days, Smith said, the support line got 171 calls.

"I'm amazed that from the little P.R. done in the paper and on TV and radio, that many people bothered to jot this number down," Smith said.

The unemployment line is the fourth phone-in service offered by the Crisis and Suicide Intervention Service. The Walnut Creek-based agency also provides 24-hour lines devoted to battered women, child abuse, and — as its name suggests — crises and suicides.

Between 1976 and 1982, the number of unemployment-related calls received on the agency's lines increased seven-fold, prompting the creation of a new hotline.

While the other lines often handle emergencies, the unemployment hotline is a more broad-based service.

"The big thing we're doing is support; providing people with concrete, tangible information," said Smith. "There's no need for them to be in a crisis stage."

Funding for the hotlines is provided by the county Board of Supervisors and the Private Industry Council, through the county Department of Manpower Programs.

During the unemployment hotline's first 25 days, the largest group of callers — 43 percent — sought help in looking for a job, said Smith. Nineteen percent called regarding financial problems, 7 percent were looking for emotional support, 4 percent were seeking retraining opportunities, and the rest had a wide variety of concerns.

"Some people just need to talk," Smith explained. "They have things which are hard to say to their families, but (through the hotline) they can say them anonymously.

No-nuke activists sue over facility

An El Cerrito anti-nuclear activist and three other East Bay women who plan to demonstrate at the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory next week have filed suit against the use of an Army base as a detention center.

The women, who were arrested at a lab protest last year and held with 700 others in the Camp Parks gym, claim women who plan to protest June 20 face radiation contamination at the facility.

They claim in their suit, filed as a class action Tuesday in U.S. District Court, that studies conducted by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and Alameda County have not proven dangerous levels of radiation do not exist at the base.

Camp Parks was used for radiation testing from 1959 to 1980, the suit says. Experiments included deliberate contamination of buildings, the women claim.

The suit was filed by Karen Britton of El Cerrito; Carole Segall of Berkeley; and Nancy Greenman and Tanis Walters of Oakland; after Alameda supervisors refused to bar use of the base during the upcoming protest, citing a study they commissioned which found no "residual radiation" at the facility.

programming, perhaps including a school-wide art fair. Marin's site council also plans to start a pilot pull-out program for gifted 5th graders.

All schools, except the high school, wish to use some of their funds to improve the area of students' "critical thinking."

At Cornell School, for example, 66 percent of the parents in a needs assesment survey said they wanted more emphasis on this subject. The site council developed a rigorous critical thinking model which they want Cornell teachers to pass on to students.

In previous years the high school has used its S.I.P. funds to develop, among other things, progams for peer tutoring, for the gifted and the highly motivated and for non-acade and after-school computer literacy program for 50 to 60 students.

Next year Marin hopes that S.I.P. funds will allow for more fine arts programming, perhaps i said that "as long as there is unanimity in the site council and things are done recognizing (school) board and state policy, that's O.K. with me."

In other business, the board heard an update of the plan to heat the Albany Pool at least partly by solar energy.

According to assistant superintendent for business John Fike, the administration hopes to have a final contract with the San Francisco-based California Energy Investment Corporation (CEIC), one of two companies which bid on the pool project, ready for board consideration at the June 28 board meeting.

Solar panels would provide only a portion of the necessary energy to heat the pool, depending upon weather, time of the year, and so forth. The contract will call for the district to paymic student recognition.

After a "quality review" which covered topics ranging from the curriculum to Albany High race relations, the high school's site council decided to focus this year on three new groups of students: ESL students, minorities who are underrepresented in higher math courses and special education students.

The high school also hopes to set up a committee on race relations to improve school and community communications. The committe would provide a panel which, according to principal Jack Marlowe, could alleviate the feeling of many minority students and parents who feel they do not have adequate recourse to air concerns and grievances.

All site council plans were reviewed and criticized by the board; but, board president Robert L. Nehls said that "as long as there is unanimity in the site council and things are done recognizing (school) board and state policy, that's O.K. with me."

leave it unattended, you may miss the crucial moment; but if you stay, you risk being troubled by angry leprechauns.

A German tale presents a more complicated method: a hunter shoots at the sun at noon on Midsummer Day, and three drops of blood fall to a cloth on the ground. These turn to fernseed. Frazer (The Golden Bough) deduces from this that fernseed is in fact the blood of the sun, and the fern's mythical fiery or golden blossoms are manifestations of the sun's power at its solstice.

Some traditions apparently found the process of gathering a mythical, invisible seed too precarious, and preferred a more tangible plant for their purposes: mistletoe. While closely associated with Midwinter and Christmas, it was also an important feature of many Midsummer customs. # The Army may be no place for a lady

A former private says the military was exclusive men's club

By JIM GRODNK

CERRITO — On a cloudy, gray Sunday morning Ft. Sam Houston army base in Texas, 18-year-old Private Simone Patton was on her way back from the when a sergeant blocked the stairway to her barracks and tried to rape her.

had joined the army, over her father's objections, graduating from Berkeley High School in 1977. Her told her she lacked the discipline to go to college. She laughed and said, "Go ahead, it'll make a man out of me."

thought, " If you want discipline, I'll show you discipline."

found discipline in the army, but she also found and disappointment. Patton, 23, remembered as at the kitchen table of her El Cerrito apartment.

is now receiving a 30 percent disability check government for psychological damage sustained the two-and-a-half years she was in the service.

was completely unprepared for the experience of woman in the army. Her male recruiter hadn't been tell her what it would be like.

had expected an easy path to promotion, perhaps Candidate School in a couple of years. Two years she was discharged she was still a private.

sands of women come out of the army feeling and lonely, she said. The camaraderie and mutual male veterans get from one another is unavailable according to Patton.

answer was to help found the Women Veterans Network, a group of 300 women veterans, 150 live in the Bay Area.

was formed three years ago to dispel myths about in the service, to counsel women thinking of en- to provide a place where veterans can talk about experiences and to make veterans aware of the bene- they are entitled to.

first of a series of bi-weekly East Bay rap sessions June 21, at 1588 Alcatraz St., Berkeley at 6:30 p.m. phone number is 654-1596.

According to Patton, the common myth about women service is that they are all prostitutes or lesbians.

The undercurrent of thought is that women go into army for action — and not combat action," she said. her friends married while in the service to avoid pregnancy.

Although some women do exchange sex for promotions or favors from superior officers, most enlistees are in the service because they need a job or want to get from home.

Patton said these myths result in sexual harassment on bases. It can take the violent form of rape, or the subtle form of verbal harassment. In high school, was called 'fatso'. She could handle that. When she the army she would be walking on the base and hear, baby, do you have any of that to give?" That hurt

The Women Veterans Information Network is now trying to address the isolation that servicewomen feel they leave the military. Patton says it is a relief for the to share their experiences with one another.

My family has heard my stories so many times they to kick me out," Patton said with a laugh.

At the first rap session, held earlier this month in San Diego, eight women veterans met and talked about in the service. "For once we were in a safe environment and we could let his stuff out," said Patton.

Simone Patton — then and now

Women were crying as they exchanged stories.

Patton's story began with the attempted rape that Sunday morning in Texas. She said the soldier who attacked her had been following her for weeks. He grabbed her in a crushing bear hug, she resisted and then "something stopped him."

When she reported the incident to her woman colonel, she was told to file a report, but not to press charges. "I didn't get the impression she believed me," said Patton.

She was given a crash course in social work, and sent to Germany. "I was only trained to interview people, and I ended up counseling rape victims, battered wives, and people with drug and alcohol problems," she said.

Two of her clients committed suicide. The strain was too much for the 18-year-old Patton. She became depressed and had a nervous breakdown. She was strapped to a litter on the floor of the cargo area of a plane and flown home.

"I was never violent," said Patton, who has just completed her junior year at UC-Berkeley, where she majors in ethnic studies and cultural anthropology.

She was given treatment and sent back to do more social work. She protested it was too much for her. When the depression returned, she was given a medical discharge.

Looking back on her two-and-a-half years in the army, Patton said her problems were compounded by her youth. "I was taught to literally shake in front of authority figures."

She was intimidated by the male-dominated world and by rank. Today she lectures at high schools on what women can expect in the service.

Patton said that women in the military should be treated differently from the men. She said men in basic training were constantly yelled at by their drill instructors and it worked for the men.

But she said, "You don't have to yell at a woman all the time to get her to do something." She doesn't want any change in the current system which leaves the combat to men. "I don't want to see women become like men."

HOTLINE

"A lot of what we do is just being helpful, careful listeners."

Callers on the hotline have been a "highly diverse group," Smith said. They come from throughout the county and are seeking work in a variety of occupations. But the majority of calls come from people who have recently lost their jobs.

About an even number of men and women have called, a statistic which surprises Smith. On the other hotlines, she said, female callers outnumber males two to one.

"We generally find men less likely to seek out help," she said.

Frequently, the hotline acts as a referral service, directing people to different service agencies. Hotline volunteers are equipped with a directory containing 139 different places where the unemployed can be referred, Smith said.

Referrals can help callers find information on alcoholism treatment centers, retraining programs, unemployment insurance, welfare benefits, financial management, vocational counseling, resume writing, free clothing centers, and low-cost medical care.

The single biggest agency to which hotline callers have been referred, Smith said, is the state Employment Development Office. But even that organization is limited in what it can do.

"We don't help everybody that comes in; it's impossible," conceded Mike Szucs, supervisor of the Richmond branch of the employment development office.

Szucs said workers referred his office range from "farm workers to highly skilled Ph.D.s."

"The people who are really falling through the cracks, who are considering suicide, who have marital problems — in other words, the very serious situations — we have advised those people to call the hotline," Szucs said.

Job prospects are getting better, Szucs said, particularly in clerical, service, and some industrial occupations. His office placed 400 people in jobs during May, compared with an average of 300 per month during 1982.

The hotline number is 827-2112.

Berkeley set to host Special Olympics

This year, for the first time, the California Special Olympics summer games will be held in Northern California at UC-Berkeley.

The games' opening ceremonies are at 6 p.m., Friday, June 24, at Edwards Field. The games will continue through the weekend of June 25 and 26.

Preliminary meets throughout the state have resulted in the selection of 2,500 mentally-handicapped athletes.

They'll be competing in 12 Special Olympics official sports at the summer games: basketball, bowling, diving, floor hockey, frisbee-disc, gymnastics, soccer, slow pitch softball, swimming, track and field, volleyball and wheelchair events.

The program is unique in that it provides for competitors at all levels of ability by assigning them to competition divisions based on age and actual performance.

The Special Olympics is a nationwide program of sports training and athletic competition for mentally handicapped children and adults. The program is designed to contribute to the physical, social and psychological development of the participants.

All athletes, coaches and supervisory staff will be housed in campus dormitories. Competition for the events will be held on the campus at UC- Berkeley, at Berkeley High School and at the Albany Bowling lanes. Admission is free.

J.E. Davidson: Meet the 'Quincy' of car mechanics

By Steven Gorman, United Press International

PITTSBURGH — J.E. Davidson is a very special and unusual kind of private detective — a forensic auto mechanic.

Davidson, 51, charges insurance companies and private attorneys $360 a day plus expenses to reconstruct car crashes, investigate odometer tampering and look for mechanical defects that may have caused an automobile accident.

With tools ranging from socket wrenches and screw drivers to tweezers and movie cameras, Davidson's work has helped win lawsuits, gain consumer fraud convictions — even prompt an automobile recall.

A former automotive investigator for the Allegheny County consumer affairs bureau, Davidson has been dubbed "the Quincy of auto mechanics" by some in the consumer fraud business.

"I love to play detective, which means logical analysis, digging out the facts, and getting to the bottom of things," said Davidson, who has a bachelor's degree in industrial-vocational education and a masters degree in history from the University of Pittsburgh.

Since 1977, when he opened his own practice as an automotive sleuth, Davidson estimates he has investigated some 500 cases and testified as an expert in about 40 trials.

In one of his current investigations, Davidson spent two hours searching the debris of a car wreck for two hours with tweezers to find the filament from a smashed signal indicator light bulb.

Examining the filament under a microscope, Davidson determined the driver had his signal on at the time of the accident.

"That will be an important point in establishing who hit whom and where and exactly how," he said.

In his work, Davidson has occasionally resorted to theatrics to prove his point.

He won one case for an insurance firm by driving a car around a curve with and without a rear stabilizer bar.

A movie he made of the test convinced the jury the plaintiff would not have lost control of his car and hit a tree if he had been doing the speed limit.

Most of his work is confined to an area within a 150-mile radius of Pittsburgh. But he has practiced as far away as Providence, R.I., where he helped the FBI convict a used-car dealer of stealing autos and reselling them with the identification plates from salvaged wrecks of identical vehicles.

In an investigation last year, Davidson found a carburator defect in 1981-82 Chevettes that was causing the cars's engine to catch fire.

His findings led federal officials to order the [illegible] 250,000 cars.

One group of cases Davidson commonly has involves odometer tampering, which he said costs "largest and most widespread fraud perpetrated [illegible] sumers in terms of motor vehicles."

Davidson even made a 40-minute movie on the [illegible] for an Odometer Tampering Conference in Williams[illegible] Va., last year.

Davidson brings to his unique occupation [illegible] experience in the auto business, including 12 [illegible] mechanic.

Auto parts as sculpture

AKLAND — An electrician, a mechanic and a welder won the top awards in a student sculpture contest sponsored by Automotive Engineering.

The Oakland firm donated auto parts for the contest h was staged to celebrate the company's 40th year in ness.

A total of 21 entries were received from students at East Bay colleges, including Walt Zucker of Berkeley, dent at Merritt College.

The $100 grand prize was awarded to Michael Daniels akland, a 30-year-old electrician employed by the U.S. , for his sculpture, "Summer Madness."

Daniels, a student at Laney College, began sculpting year ago but he's been dabbling in art work of various since he was five years old.

"My father was a brick layer and mason and I guess influenced me, working with him and seeing how er and bricks went together," he said.

As a junior high school student, he received the grand in a window dressing contest in his home town in Virginia. His ambition is to break into the field of rising design.

Daniels describes his black, red, blue and yellow ure, fashioned from valves and springs, as a "totally ort concept of that burning desire after the winter to t into the sun."

Honorable mention awards of $25 each were awarded o other Laney College students, John Sporich and ara Bye, both of Oakland.

Sporich, an unemployed machinist who is taking his sculpture course, won two of the three honorable ions for his "Auto Parts Omelet," made of valves and s covered with plaster, and "Bird in Flight," created n exhaust manifold and crank shaft.

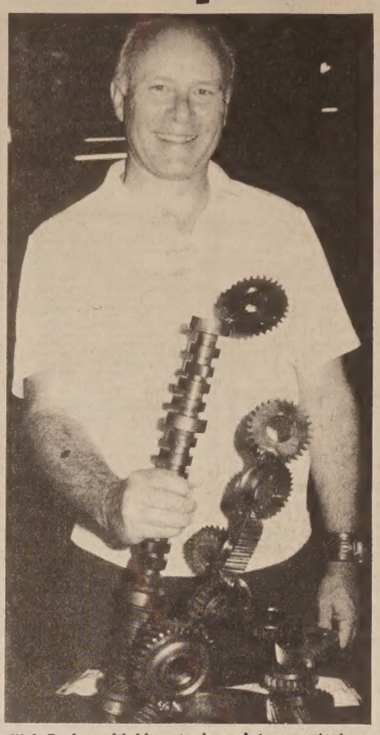
A native of Tacoma, Wash., Sporich came here in o work as a draftsman with Bay Area Rapid Transit. olds one patent — for an egg-shaped trailer, with only wheel, that can be trailed behind a car.

"I've always been into inventing," he said, "but s no money in it. The process is too complicated. The about art is that you can be completely in control of eative process yourself. You don't have to depend on people — and you don't have a boss."

Like the other two winners, Barbara Bye won her first d for sculpture in the Automotive Engineering con- Her entry, "Automotive Conception," was made of shafts set at angles and was praised by the judges as ecarious design that works nicely."

Bye, a professional welder, has been studying sculp- for the past two years. She credits her interest to a in Egypt during which she was inspired by the an- temple carvings of marble and granite.

Th 39-year-old Pennsylvania native is the daughter and daughter of artists. Her grandfather, Arthur Edwin Bye, was a professinal oil painter and her father, Ranulph Bye, is a well-known watercolorist on the East Coast.



Walt Zucker with his entry in sculpture contest

Bye moved to the East Bay 10 years ago and became the first woman to be employed in the maintenance field at Del Monte Cannery, in Emeryville. She has been working on large industrial projects ever since.

In contrast, her other avocation is jewelry design — contemporary silver pieces which she sells through small shops and boutiques.

The sculptures also included entries from students at the University of California, Chabot College and Ohlone College. They were judged by Gene Olson, executive director of the Oakland Festival of the Arts, and Ellen Baker Ansel, member of the Alameda County Art Commission.

The entries were viewed by 1,300 partygoers at two open houses held to celebrate the 40th anniversary of Automotive Engineering.

The top prizewinners were on display June 3 to 5 at the grand opening of the Oakland Convention Center. Beginning June 6, they are being exhibited at Automotive Engineering outlets in Vallejo, Napa, Fairfield, Stockton, Concord, San Ramon, Hayward, San Jose, Salinas, Redwood City, San Francisco, San Rafael and Berkeley.

The series of exhibits is scheduled to end Feb. 10, 1984.

California investors eye the DeLorean

DETROIT (UPI) — John Z. DeLorean is involved in an attempt by a group of California investors to take over the remains of the defunct DeLorean Motor Co., DMC attorneys said last week.

Federal Bankruptcy Judge George Woods, however, refused a motion by DMC creditors to block an attempt by the investors to take over the firm. A hearing originally set for Monday to hear the bid was postponed to June 20.

A group headed by James Gorman of Newport Beach, Calif., has put down a $100,000 deposit in a Detroit bank as proof of its interest in buying the remains of DMC, which would include design rights to the gull-winged sports car as well as future production rights.

Creditors have alleged the money came not from Gorman but from Logan Manufacturing of Logan, Utah, which is owned by Delorean, who is awaiting trial in Los Angeles on federal drug charges.

DMC attorney Lawrence Snider told reporters following the court hearing that DeLorean is involved in the attempt by the so-called Gorman group to take over the remains of DMC.

"Mr. DeLorean is involved in some fashion. He wants to see the car manufactured in some form again," Snider said.

The attorney said he was not aware of DeLorean's involvement when the Gorman group made its deposit two months ago. He said DeLorean may have become involved in the takeover attempt sometime after the money was put down.

Attorney Robert Weiss argued in court that Woods should throw out the bid by the Gorman group, saying "a fraud is being perpetrated on this court."

M-Toyota ruling awaited

DETROIT (UPI) — A final ruling from the Federal e Commission on the General Motors Corp.-Toyota is expected within three weeks, officials said.

In addition, preliminary discussions on labor relations e joint venture plant in Fremont, Calif., are being ex- d through the end of the month. They were scheduled wrap up around June 17.

An FTC spokesman in Washington said neither GM Toyota have fully complied with the commission's re- s for additional documents on the venture.

Spokesman Neil Friedman said he had no idea when FTC would get the rest of the documents "but I can tell the commission isn't even close to reaching a decision. r case, I can't see anything happening before the sec- week of July."

Nissan Motor Co. to go British

TOKYO (UPI) — Nissan Motor Co., Japan's No. 2 automaker, will announce soon it is going ahead with a plan to assemble passenger cars in Britain, a newspaper reported Tuesday.

A formal decision will be made before the company's general shareholders' meeting set for June 29, the Sankei Shimbun newspaper said.

A spokesman for Nissan said "the report was based on speculation. The project still is pending and there has been no change in our position that it still is under review."

The newspaper said a Nissan executive, whose name was withheld, cited as favorable signs last week's Tory (Thatcher) election victory and an upturn of auto demand in Britain and other Common Market nations.

Lundberg sees stable gas prices

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Oil expert Dan Lundberg says gasoline prices — up only a fraction of a cent in the past three weeks — demonstrate greater market stability since the national nickel-a-gallon tax hike went into effect.

The Lundberg Survey of 17,000 retail stations in all 50 states recently Sunday that there has been an increase of only 0.88 since the last survey three weeks prior.

But prices just before and after the April 1 five-cent tax hike jumped 10.8 cents per gallon on a national average, including taxes. And Lundberg said upward pressure will remain on retail prices due to upcoming regional tax hikes in many states.

"To any possible traditional increase in gasoline prices there will be the additional upward price pressure of adding state taxes," he said.

Lundberg noted that at least eight states and the District of Columbia had scheduled tax increases of from one cent to six cents to be effective July 1.

Emerald Express thinks luxury is the way to go

CULVER CITY, Calif. (UPI) — Emerald Express is a new transportation company with an answer for busy executives who think getting there is half the fun.

Or for not very busy non-executives who find short hops on airplanes nerve jarring.

Emerald has regularly scheduled door-to-door luxury limousine service between Los Angeles and San Diego beginning June 2, or to Santa Barbara, a route that has existed for two weeks.

At the end of the summer, when the desert resorts gear up for the long winter season, Palm Springs will be a terminal point also.

All of the routes are under 120 miles, Bob Jones, general manager of Emerald Express Transportation Co., said. The key to the service, he said, is the 9-passenger luxury cruisers, especially designed for Emerald by Leagh Caverhill of Beverly Hills, well-known designer of limousines.

The cruisers can seat 12 people for charters, he said.

The design was taken to Armbruster-Stageway Inc., in Fort Smith, Ark., the worlds' oldest and largest manufacturers of custom-built vehicles.

The formula, Jones said, is: Take a Chevrolet Suburban, cut it in half, stretch it 100 inches with more seats and doors, and install two television monitors, individual stereophonic headsets, telephones, reading lamps and refreshments available for each of the airplane-type seats.

Emerald picks up passengers at their home or office in a run-of-the-mill Lincoln Towne Car limousine and takes them to the terminal where they change to the posh "cruisers," for the trip.

While riding in the cruisers, passengers can work or relax with amenities such as the contoured reclining seats and individual air vents, and watch a movie on the overhead TV monitor.

On arrival at the destination city, another chauffeur-driven Towne Car takes them to their doors.

The idea for the service was planted when Emerald co-founder Joseph Gilboa rode a limousine from Los Angeles to Palm Springs. He didn't like it.

"It was an uncomfortable four and a [illegible] he said. He thought about how such a [illegible] improved and took the idea to his business [illegible] and Clarissa Mehdi-Tash.

A marketing study was prepared by [illegible] sulting Corp. of Villa Park, near Anaheim.

"And we're in the process of doing [illegible] studies in other cities," Jones said. "We're [illegible] Francisco, Washington, Houston, Philadelphia [illegible] York."

He said, however, the company will [illegible] limited to 120 miles one way and is not in [illegible] the airlines.

"We're trying to get people to their [illegible] reasonable time, but we're only looking at [illegible] the market," Jones said.

Linda Zittel shows her elephant puppet to a young student

Puppetry class slated

The El Cerrito Community Center will share the magic of puppetry in a five-week workshop entitled, "Let's Put on a Puppet Show." Children ages 8 to 11 will make hand puppets and put on their own puppet production.

Participants will learn to make finished looking puppets. They will help put together their own plays, design props and scenery and learn puppet voice and manipulation. The workshop ends with an original performance.

The workshop is taught by local puppeteer Linda Zittel, director of Magic Window Puppet Theater, who puts on puppet shows and workshops in the East Bay. She will be performing a series of shows and workshops for the Berkeley Library in July and August.

The class begins June 21 on Tuesdays and Thursday, from 3:15 to 4:15 p.m., extending to July 21. Another session begins on July 26 and continues to Sept. 1. Registration for the class is continuous.

The fee is $18 for residents, and $21 for nonresidents. For further informaton call Lois Boyle, at the Community Center at 525-6748.

Kensington camp set

KENSINGTON — The Kensington Community Council summer day camp began June 17.

The camp is for children 6 to 12, and offers drama, art, music, sports, games, crafts, swimming, field trips and overnight camping.

There will be four sessions of two weeks each. The first begins June 27. The final session begins Aug. 8.

For further information, call the Kensington Recreation office at 525-0292. Registration forms are also available at the office and in the Kensington Library.

Party set for local writer

She will sign copies of her new paperback novel, "Hers the Kingdom," at Artist's Proof Bookstore, 460 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur from 5 to 7 p.m.

The paperback book, Streshinksy's first novel, is a family saga of early California.

Her first book, "And I Alone Survived," was written with Lauren Elder, who survived a Sierra plane crash that killed her companions.

Softball camp set for girls

EL CERRITO — The El Cerrito Community Center will hold a softball camp for fifth through eighth grade girls, Aug. 15 to 19, at Cerrito Vista Park.

Asking the governor for help

The following is a copy of a letter sent to Governor by the pastor of the First Unitarian Church of Berkeley.

Dear Gov. Deukmajian: The most important resource of the State of California is the quality of its citizens. Currently, the children in this state are receiving fragmented and inadequate education. A random survey of a half dozen public schools would convince any qualified observer of the need for immediate action. Therefore, I urge you to sign into law at least $700 million of educational aid to public education now.

I also urge you to sign into law AB 1962 which would provide income for the state to finance the additional aid to education. I am a stockholder in Standard Oil of California and gladly self-impose this aditional tax to aid the children of Richmond who live in the shadow of the Chevron Refinery.

If you question the need for additional funds this year, I urge you to visit any of the Richmond public schools.

Pablo Casals once wrote, "It is a tragedy to waste a mind." Thousands of young minds are being wasted in Richmond today.

In faith, hope, and love,
Dr. Richard F. Boeke
First Unitarian Church of Berkeley

Let's save Vista College

As the Governor is fuming over the problems created by his proposed budget cuts, and his roll-over of a $900 million deficit into the next fiscal year. The political excitement masks the hardships that these actions will cause, now and in years to come.

For example, it is proposed to reduce aid to school districts when a substantial number are already hovering on the brink of bankruptcy, and others have not been able to meet their commitments. The tragic effect of Propositon 13 are easily appreciated when we think of the children being educationally robbed in grades K through 12 and so immediately visible is the value of education for older people.

In Berkeley, Vista College has offered a variety of courses for adults, young and old. Crafts, reading, discussion, and many classes are held in public libraries, senior centers, and retirement homes. Vista College has no campus. Its overhead is at a bare minumum.

What is happening at Vista? The overall program faces a 10 to 20 percent cut, and the programs for older adults, so valuable to combat mental aging, are slated for a 20 percent cut. When the going got rough Vista decided to sacrifice this group. And, in the way most comfortable for bureaucrats and administrators, the proposed slash was concealed from Vista students until the last minute, when word leaked out, creating ill will all the way around.

Vista College students, and other concerned citizens should protest this abominatory treatment to President John J. Hollemen, and Dean of Instruction Ione Elioff, 2020 Milvia Street, Berkeley, CA. 94707.

There are a number of ways to alleviate the damage to our educational system and human services. Undertaxed areas exist which would increase revenue without increasing property taxes. Governor George Deukmejian should hear a resounding voice from the people, a demand that he utilize every resource to save free public education for young and old. Urge him to stop playing politics with our educational system. Write him at: The State Capital, Sacramento, Ca. 95814.

He's frustrated by circulation

I consider it time for whoever is in charge to take charge of deliveries of the Times Journal.

Here's what I am up against, and now for you: this evening I found The Berkeley Voice neatly on my doorstep, where I found it before. On the other hand, I found if the Times Journal is delivered 3 blocks away, somewhere between the curb and my property line.

In the past several weeks I have not witnessed the delivery process, which consists of a fast moving truck and a long arm that manages, at the speed of sound, to hit the front green strip of the block approximately every other lot. If this is true throughout the City, you are getting 50 percent results from your efforts and 50 percent productivity for what you pay the delivery people.

My estimates are correct, half the people in Albany don't see your paper, and the copies are in the dump, or somewhere. Maybe I'm off in my calculations by 50 percent. If so, you're still being taken, and we're not getting the paper, which seems to be an odd way to run a business.

How come the Voice, which is about Berkeley, can do the delivery job better, and the Albany paper can't be depended upon?

I would think you have a problem here. I look forward to an improvement soon, or I'll just give up and stop looking for my Times Journal, even at the curb.

Warren W. Jones
Albany

P.S. One time I saw a reference in the paper to a place in Contra Costa County to call about missed deliveries. I think this is too important for me to spend my time finding out who is responsible for deliveries and then issuing a complaint. The needed reform ought to come from the publisher or editor, or you might as well stop printing.

Opening lead: ♠J

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

In this Paul Lukacs problem as published in "The Bridge World" we find South at a rather doubtful contract of six spades. The bidding is Paul's and has no part in the problem.

You win the spade lead with your queen and give thanks that trumps are not going to break 4-0. You also are glad that a diamond wasn't led against you. The hand looks pretty hopeless if the heart finesse is wrong. If it is right and trumps are 3-1 and hearts 4-2, you need to keep two entries in dummy to set up the fifth heart so you take the heart finesse. It works and things are looking up.

You lead a trump to your ace and East shows out. Now you lead your last heart and West produces the king.

Here comes the key play. You must duck in dummy to leave West on lead.

Now West is helpless. He will probably lead his last trump. You win in dummy. Discard one diamond on the ace of hearts and ruff a heart. Now back to dummy with the king of clubs to discard your last low diamond on the long heart and claim your slam.

Paul's last comment on this hand is, "An interesting speculation is what declarer should do if West plays his king of hearts on the first round of the suit."

South will still make the hand if he lets the king hold, but he may decide that the king was a singleton. In that case he must abandon hearts, draw trumps and try for some way to score two diamond tricks.
